Chapter 1 by Lorimorris

Kalani Oliver was no one. Literally. No one knew her name. A broke family, crushing school work and a limited social life left little to enjoy in her life.

But when an opportunity arises that would make her popularity skyrocket, she needs to weigh her options.

Date the bad boy?

Or remain invisible?

Chapter 2 by Lorimorris

"I'm queen of the clouds, make my wish come true, I sing to the night, let me sing to you."

Tove Lo's song 'Not on Drugs' played in Kalani's ears while she did her homework. She was bored out of her mind. With her little brothers bugging the crap out of her every ten seconds, she was going mad. Sorry, she already was mad. It was a self-proclaimed kind of thing.

"Tyler! Get out of here you little b*tch! I'll cut you when you're sleeping!" She shouted. Kalani threw her geography books aside and ran out of her room and down the hall.

Ugh, idiots. She thought to herself as she ran to the comfort of her bed. A loud crash and a wall of silence met her as she fell back to sleep and mutter under her breath. Stupid idiots, now they've done it. Kalani traipsed down the hall, slumping her shoulders. She reached the dining room and let out a sigh.

Tyler was hiding behind the sofa and James was crying in his cot. Kalani leaned over James's cot and picked him up in her arms. For a 10 month old he was heavy.

There was a rustle of keys at the door and Kalani's mom walked in, Michael in tow. Tyler bounded up to his mom and Michael ran up the stairs to his room.

"How's my boy?" She said. "Kalani, did you wash the dishes like I asked?"

Kalani shook her head. She was mentally preparing herself for a lecture.

"Did you hang out the clothes from the washing machine? What about Tyler's homework?" Her mother kept hounding her. Going on and on about the lack of work Kalani did around the house.

"Ma, I've been working on my latest report for my Geography assignment, I couldn't concentrate with thing one and thing two around me." Kalani cut her mother off. She never liked Kalani. It was literally an evil step-mother relationship just with out the 'step'. Her mother rolled her eyes, a constant occurrence.

"Don't cut me off, young lady." Her mother said. Kalani didn't say anything. But she wouldn't let her mother win. Kalani shot a dark glare at her mother and stormed out of sight. Letting out a sigh.

Yeah, we get it, you're a single mum. Kalani thought. She relaxed on her bed with her legs hanging off. She always found that the best way to get a clear look on things was to see them from a different angle. That angle's name was Eleanor.

With her phone just within reach on the bed, Kalani picked it up and texted her friend.

K: Evil mother, annoying brothers, you know the drill.

E: Ugh ok I'll be over in 5

Kalani had issues with Kalani opened the window in an attempt to calm down. It was a Friday for Christ sake. Her geography paper was due on Monday and like always, she'd left it to the last minute. God forbid her mum ever found out.

"Kalani! Eleanor's here, come down and be a good host!" Her mother called from down the hall. Kalani heard Eleanor's fake politeness and could pick it out anywhere. It was always a 'Hi Ms. West, how are you? Oh that's good, I'm good also.' And that would be it.

Eleanor walked in and made herself at home in Kalani's room at once. Eleanor rolled her eyes and gave Kalani a 'oh dear god' smile.

"So tell me, oh wise one, what's your plan?" Kalani questioned playfully. Knowing full well that El would have already begun phase 2 whilst plotting phase 14.

"I've found a way to beat the popularity system. Date above your level." She was giddy and the spark in her eyes showed the slightest hint of crazy.

"Dude, are you high?" Kalani's brown eyes widened while inspecting Eleanor's green ones.

"Yes. That's the only way I can think. I needed Mr Green's help." El replied with a shrug, "It's whatever. Now let me tell you my 5 phase plan..."

Chapter 3 by Autumn

"Since you--we I mean are as you would say lower on the food chain we have know some one higher" explained El "What exactly are you proposing?" I questioned, El practically jumping out of her seat with excitement over her new idea."Date a bad boy!"she raised her voice "El chill my mom isn't deaf, but are you actually serious?" I asked. " Yeah but you have to pick the perfect candidate....."
